DIR: NADINE LABAKI

LEBANON 2007

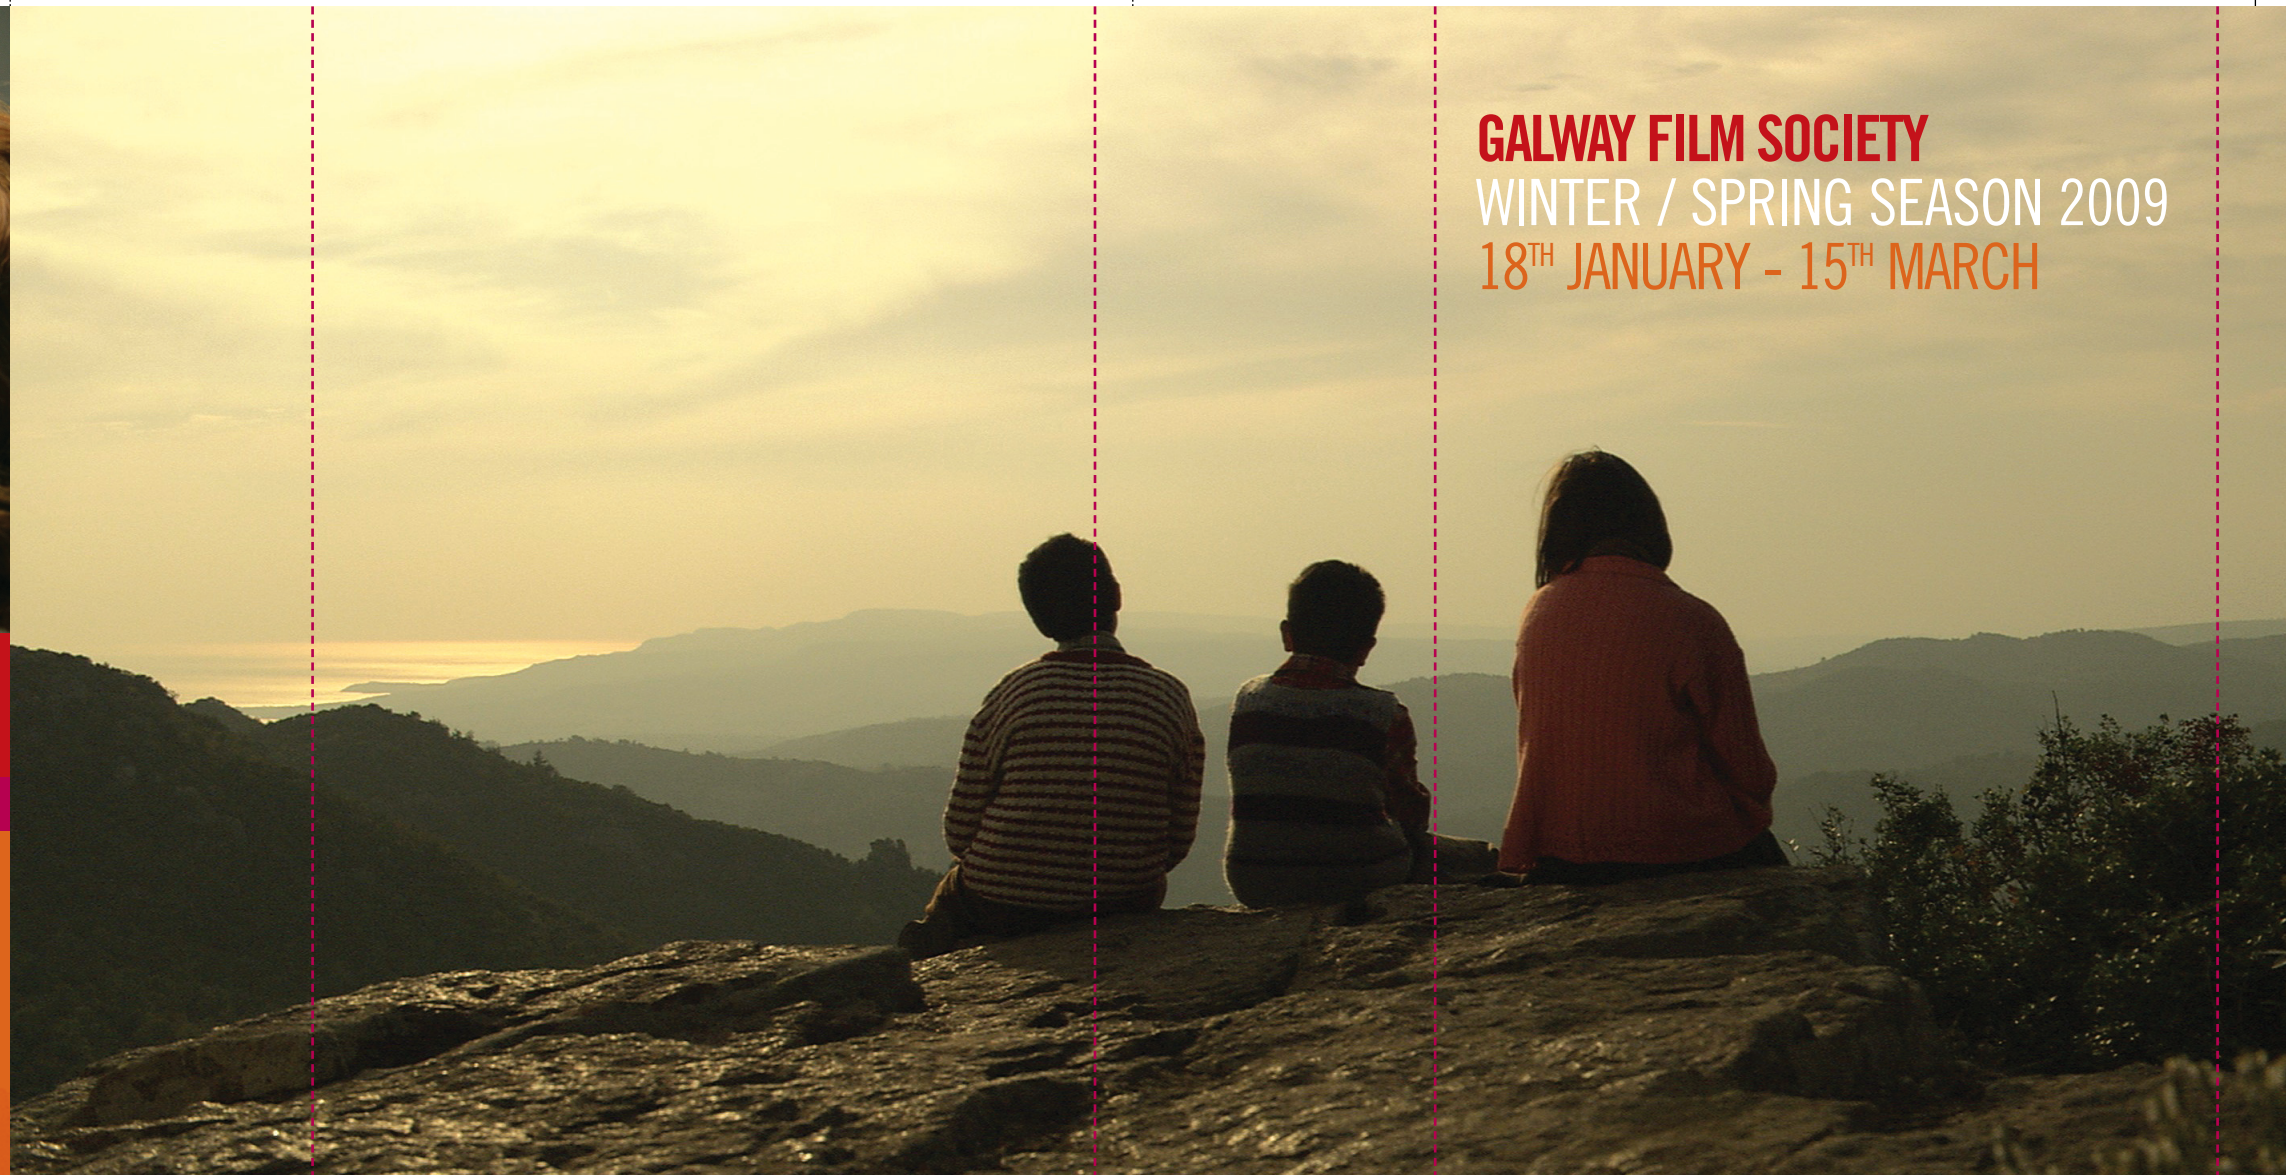

95 MINS

In her gorgeous and love-affirming feature debut – which was the sleeper hit of the 2007 Cannes Film Festival – Nadine Labaki finds gold in the hot goo used to strip body hair. Set in and around a Beirut beauty salon, Caramel stirs together the smooth and the crunchy of five women's lives. Labaki herself plays Layale, leading an ensemble cast that generates enormous warmth and wit on screen. "There is a new kind of film coming from Lebanon, one that looks past war and politics to the eternal truths of love and passion. This is where the impressive women of Caramel find their strength." - Toronto International Film Festival Programme 2007.
